Sarah represents management in a wide-variety of industries. Her practice includes all aspects of labor and employment law and litigation.

A significant portion of Sarah's practice includes representing management in labor relations matters. She has represented employers in numerous National Labor Relations Board unfair labor practice proceedings, labor arbitrations (both contract interpretation and discipline matters), as well as in representation campaigns, and in litigation involving hybrid wrongful termination/duty of fair representation claims.

Sarah represents employers in single-plaintiff and collective-action employment matters, including discrimination, wage and hour, sex harassment, and wrongful termination cases, before state and federal courts, administrative agencies, and in arbitration and mediation.

Sarah's practice also includes counseling clients in litigation avoidance. She frequently assists companies in investigations, policy reviews, management training, and in the settlement and negotiation of employment-related claims.
